

Ca' Sagredo Hotel

Venice, Italy

- Like 16
- Like 16
- Add to favorites

Flash sale
Ending soon

On Venice's Grand Canal, Ca' Sagredo is a 14th-century noble residence turned five-star hotel.

From $215 / night

Hotel website
$395/night

Select check in date

Select the night you'd like to check in

November

December >

S	M	T	W	T	F	S
30	31	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10

Available check in dates Standby

November

December >

S	M	T	W	T	F	S
30	31	1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19

Overview

Maps & Attractions

Details

About your stay

By Jessica Colley, Jetsetter Correspondent

This hotel is Jetsetter verified
Our editors have been here and it has met our standards.

Envision a nighttime arrival: the glow of lampshades reflecting in the inky Grand Canal, the boat gliding toward a historic pink palazzo. Inside there are a grand staircase flanked by frescoes, and sophisticated suites with dramatic silk curtains. This is Ca' Sagredo, a 14th-century noble residence turned five-star hotel. It's elegant without being stuffy, ancient but full of luxurious upgrades — in short, Venice for the modern traveler.

What we love

- Buffet breakfast is included in the Jetsetter rate
- Fantastic central location overlooking the Grand Canal
- Original frescoes and mosaic floors will thrill history and art enthusiasts
- Great for romance-seeking couples
- Across the canal from the Rialto fish market
- The hotel has its own vaporetto (water bus) stop: Ca' d'Oro
- In-house restaurant L'Alcova is pushing boundaries beyond traditional Venetian cuisine

What to know

- There is a two-night minimum stay
- Not all rooms have Grand Canal views
- Remember your Do Not Disturb sign; maid service can begin early
- This historic hotel offers elegance from a different century; not a cutting-edge design option
- Opened in 2007 after 7 years of extensive renovation and restoration
- Pets are not permitted

Jetsetter review

In the center of one of Italy's most mysterious cities is Ca'Sagredo — hard to miss with its pink facade poking out above the Grand Canal. This unique hotel offers a chance to experience Venice's rich history firsthand. Step off the boat at the property's very own vaporetto stop and into the marble entrance, which has welcomed distinguished Venetian nobility for centuries.

You could take the elevator to your room, but climbing the grand staircase and admiring the hand-painted frescoes on the walls is a far more enticing option. All 42 rooms and suites define Old World elegance, complete with ornate touches like plush dressing areas, gilded headboards and antique furnishings. Like Venice itself, the rooms have an unmistakable air of romance.

As comfortable as I was in Ca'Sagredo, there is too much to explore to overindulge in the luxuries of the room. Steps from the door I hopped aboard a traghetto, one of the jet-black gondolas that cross the canal in exchange for a coin. A gondolier clad in a black-and-white striped shirt extended his hand, helping me onto the dock and straight into the Rialto fish market. This bustling market is the source for Venice's best restaurants.

Not that you have to leave Ca'Sagredo to be well fed. Days begin with an elegant breakfast buffet, opera playing softly in the background. After a day of exploring the city on foot, a refreshing cocktail in Bar l'Incontro might be in order. Anyone with a serious interest in food should request the tasting menu at L'Alcova, the ground-floor restaurant overlooking the Grand Canal, which serves up cuisine with ingredients from Venice's own lagoon.

At Ca' Sagredo, public spaces are filled with museum-worthy furnishings and chandeliers.

Each morning of my stay I stepped out onto the stone balcony perched above the Grand Canal for a glimpse of the Venice seen by the Sagredo family. That's what this hotel does: It grants access to an authentic Venice that's hidden from most travelers. Slow down to take in the marble floors, hand-painted frescoes, and sculptures that were made for Venetian nobility.

What to do

- Shop. Ca'Sagredo is a short stroll from shops containing the best of Italian fashion, leather, shoes and handbags.
- See. Wander through the Rialto fish market early in the morning to watch chefs and locals bargain for seafood and produce.
- Sample. Taste dishes from executive chef Klostermaier, cooking in back-to-nature style with local products such as lagoon clams.
- Travel. From the airport board a water taxi that will bring you straight to a private entrance of Ca'Sagredo.
- Gaze. Gain another perspective on Venice by climbing to the top of the campanile in the Piazza San Marco to gaze out over the red rooftops.